

Colds

should be "nipped in the bud", for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of the old reliable, vegetable liver powder.

Mr. Chas. A. Ragland, of Madison Heights, Va., says: "I have been using The Ford's Black-Draught for stomach troubles, indigestion, and colds, and find it to be the very best medicine I ever used. It makes an old man feel like a young one."

Ruskin in the Kitchen.

In her book of reminiscences, "Thirteen Years of a Busy Woman's Life," Mrs. Alec Tweedie says that her father, Dr. Harley, a well known London physician, was a great friend of Ruskin and often stayed at Brantwood. One night Ruskin asked Dr. Harley whether he liked tea or coffee before he got up.

"A cup of tea," he replied.
"Why don't you choose coffee?"
"Well, to tell the truth, I have lived so much abroad that I don't fancy English coffee. It is generally so badly made."
His host said nothing. The next morning Dr. Harley was awakened, and a strong smell of coffee permeated the room. Turning to a servant, he asked, "Is that my cup of tea?"
"No, sir; it is Mr. Ruskin's coffee."
"Mr. Ruskin's coffee! What do you mean?"
"The master was up early. He roasted the coffee himself, he ground the coffee himself, and he made the coffee himself, and he hopes you will like it."

Growth of Wealth.

The wealth of the world grows very slowly, and the amount of real saving is amazingly small. If, for example, the wealth of the United States when George Washington became president was equivalent to a billion dollars—and that perhaps is not a bad guess—and this amount could have steadily earned a little over 5 per cent every year since, this gain, compounded, would exceed the present estimated wealth of this country. This means that all the rest of the saving and the gains from new enterprises and a rapidly increasing population have only just about balanced the annual waste and loss. True, more than two-thirds of the wealth of nations is still the human machine and not the visible tangible property, but the fact serves to show how slight is the annual gain even in the premier get rich quick country of the world, the United States.—Carl Snyder in Collier's Weekly.

No Simple Life at Ayr.

The "simple life" finds no sympathetic atmosphere in Scotland and, above all, not in the "Auld Ayr" of Robert Burns.

Auld Ayr, when ne'er a town supposes for honest men and bonnie lasses.
George Ferguson Munro is a newspaper person who writes articles for a Scottish newspaper. Munro wanted to live a free, untrammelled, outdoor life. He began last spring. He wandered over hills and dale, doing nothing, finding enough to eat and drink, lying on a shaded hillside reading a good book. He interfered with no one. The earth was his bed, the starry sky his roof. When it rained he went into a barn. Yet for leading this simple life he was taken by the rough hand of the law as a vagabond and sentenced by the magistrate of Ayr to three months' hard labor.—Indianapolis News.

Dumas an Enigma.

The elder Dumas was the greatest enigma in the literary world of Paris, for who has ever been able to explain just how and when all the books that bear his name were written? He loved the mysterious for its own sake. He told the how he had dabbled in magnetism and mesmeric experiments. He spoke with absolute conviction of the power of magnetism and declared that the whole of life and society was, to his way of thinking, nothing but a manifestation of magnetic force.
His talk was like the man himself, calm, unchalant, without a trace of emotion. He was so far above discussion as to ignore it. When he was speaking he seemed to imply by his look and manner that it made no difference to him whether you believed what he was saying or not.—Francis Grierson in Century Magazine.

Simply Separated.

The janitor of a hall in a country place was asked by an entertainer from the city if there wasn't a piano that he could use for the evening's entertainment.
"Well, yes, there is a piano down in the cellar," said the janitor, "but you couldn't play on it—leastways, not as it is, for it's full of books."
"Susan, where's the works of that piano?"
And Susan's voice floated down from upstairs:
"Ain't they out in the garden?"

Largest Star Known.

Canopus, the largest star known, with a luminosity of 47,000 times that of the sun, is invisible from the northern hemisphere. O. R. Walkley, an English astronomer, adduces testimony at great length to prove the central sun of the universe about which all other orbs revolve.

Appearances Deceptive.

"Thompson has made a discovery."
"Indeed?"
"Yes. He says that he has discovered that the more buttons there are on a woman's coat the greater the probability that it really fastens with hooks and eyes."—Puck.

Ancient Gardens.
Statues were a decorative element of which the Florentine garden architect made expensive use. At first a few antique busts were placed along the terrace of the loggia, but ere long Greek gods and heroes, fauns and naiads were seen at the end of every alley, while giants and caryatides were introduced to support walls and porticoes.
One great charm of renaissance gardens was the skillful manner in which nature and art were blended together. The formal design of the giardino segreto agreed with the straight lines of the house, and the walls, with their clipped hedges, led on to the wilder, freer growth of woodland and meadow, while the dense shade of the bosco supplied an effective contrast to the sunny spaces of lawn and flower bed. The ancient practice of cutting box trees into fantastic shapes, known to the Romans as the topiary art, was largely restored in the fifteenth century and became an essential part of Italian gardens.—New York Telegram.

Curious Telegraph Lines.

The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from La Paz, the capital of Bolivia, to the neighboring town of Oruro, a distance of about 156 miles. There are no growing trees in this part of the world, and wood of any kind is so rare that the telegraph poles were made of the same material as the natives' household furniture—dried mud. The pillars were built on stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a tapering height of fifteen feet. They were placed about 500 feet apart. Another curious telegraph line was constructed in Uganda by a British engineer, who transported growing trees to the roadside and used them as poles because he could not find any "dead" wood that would withstand the ravages of the white ants. In Dutch East India growing trees are also turned to account in this manner, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side and the actual telegraph line suspended down the center.

Fleas as Jumpers.

The jumping powers of fleas have been much exaggerated, according to a bulletin on these insects issued by the department of agriculture. The species known as the human flea (Pulex irritans) is probably the best jumper. According to Mitzman, the maximum horizontal distance this species can jump is thirteen inches and the maximum vertical distance less than eight inches.

The question of the flea's jumping powers is of importance in connection with the spread of bubonic plague and other diseases of which this insect is the carrier. The Indian plague commission, which has investigated the habits of the Indian rat flea, finds its maximum horizontal jump to be only five inches, while Mitzman records the maximum height to which it can jump as three and one-eighth inches. One species of flea, the "sticktight," is nearly incapable of jumping.

Limitations of Science.

Johnny was sent to study mathematics, and the teacher told him that it was a true science.
"For instance," she said, "if it takes one man twelve days to build a house, then twelve men can build it in one day."
Johnny replied: "And 288 men will build it in an hour, 17,280 in a minute, 1,036,800 men will put it up in a second. Now, I don't believe they could build even a single brick in that time. Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in twelve days, twelve ships should be able to cross it in one day. I don't believe that either, so I'm not going to study mathematics." And Johnny left the teacher studying it herself.—Exchange.

Her Word of Honor.

"Don't you love me?"
"Yes, but I'm already engaged."
"Then break your engagement."
"Oh, Jack, that wouldn't be honorable! An engagement is a sacred thing, not lightly to be entered into or broken off. Besides—"
"Well?"
"Well, I'm engaged to two men, and that makes it even worse."—Boston Transcript.

Anxious to Help.

He (after the haymaker)—Has your father said anything about helping to provide a home for us? She—Oh, yes, indeed! He said that when we had a home of our own he would buy me a cookbook and allow mother to come and teach me how to use it, even if it took a year.—New York Weekly.

Nautical.

"Father," wired the young yachtsman, "please advance me some money. My boat is entered in tomorrow's race and I'm sure she will win."
And father promptly replied, "Not with a time allowance from me."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"I'm not going to wait for that. I'm going to pound on Opportunity's door."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

In the Wake of Great War.

A great war leaves the country with three armies—an army of cripples, an army of mourners and an army of thieves.—German Proverb.

Beer Always on Tap.

Bavaria has the world's record for beer drinking. Perhaps that accounts for a certain push button in the city of Nuremberg. On one of the many interesting little streets of that quaint old town there is a large, plain-looking building which serves as the downtown office and warehouse of a certain large brewery. In the wall near the door of this wholesale establishment there is a push button that evidently connects with an electric bell somewhere. Over it is a sign reading "Bierglocke," which translated literally into English means "Beer Bell"—evidently an arrangement for summoning more beer in case of emergency.

English Military Offenses.

There are more than a dozen different offenses for which a soldier may be sentenced to death while on active service. The first on the list of death offenses applies to a commanding officer and reads, "Shamefully delivering up a garrison when in command of troops, without due necessity—punishment, death." A soldier can be shot for throwing away his rifle or sword in the presence of the enemy, for cowardice or for leaving his commanding officer in order to plunder. If he forces his way past a sentry on active service he may be sentenced to death or for assaulting any one bringing up provisions for the troops. A soldier is expressly forbidden while on active service to commit any offense against a resident of the country in which he is fighting under pain of death, nor may he break into any house in search of plunder or discharge his rifle intentionally to create a false alarm on the march. A soldier while acting as sentry who is found sleeping at his post may be shot. Any man causing or joining in a mutiny is liable to be shot. Desertion or attempt at desertion while on active service is naturally a death offense.—London Opinion.

Dreams.

What is the purpose of dreams? Dr. Isador H. Coriat answers the question thus in "The Meaning of Dreams."
It can be shown through dream analysis that dreams subserve a definite function in our mental life in that they really act as protectors and not as disturbers of sleep. This guardianship of sleep by means of dreams is due to the persistent dynamic action of the censor. In sleep the censor is exceedingly active, and its function is to protect sleep from the mass of repressed emotions which threaten to overwhelm the sleeper in the shape of a dream. This is done by means of the dream mechanism, in which the dream thoughts are fused and displayed, thus undergoing such disguise and symbolization as to be unrecognizable to the sleeper and consequently not disturbing to him. When the censor nods or is evaded, when the literal dream thoughts bombard and invade consciousness in an undisguised form, sleep is disturbed and insomnia results.

A Remarkable Suicide.

One of the most remarkable cases of suicide was that of the king of Falahe, on the west coast of Africa.
The king was attacked by a Mohammedan force, and, finding resistance impossible, he assembled his family and principal officers and after addressing them and intimating his determination never to accept Mohammedanism and inviting those who did not agree with him to go away, he applied a light to a large quantity of gunpowder collected for the purpose and blew into atoms the palace and all who were in it.

Queer English Custom.

It is customary in the East district for the unmarried girls to peer through the keyhole of the house early on St. Valentine's morning before any one else in the house is astir. They believe that if this is done fasting, omens of the year to come will be seen. For instance, should a cock and hen pass together, the girl may be sure that she will be married ere the year is out; if she sees a robin alone it is a sign that she will have a fortune left her; if a sparrow flies up to the door and pecks at as though for crumbs, she may take it as a warning to be careful, and that her good name will be in danger unless she take heed; while, if a hen strolls by, it is a sign that she will be an old maid.
